

The Weekend Theory

Weekends, done properly

Manali

Snow at Solang, the Atal Tunnel, and slow mornings in Old Manali.

KULLU VALLEY, HIMACHAL PRADESH

3 NIGHTS / 4 DAYS · DELHI TO DELHI

THE PLACE

The valley that has everything uphill.

Manali sits where the Kullu Valley narrows against the Pir Panjal, with the Beas running loud through the middle of town. One side is orchards and old wooden temples, the other is cafes that forgot to close.

Half an hour up the road is Solang Valley, and beyond it the Atal Tunnel punches through the mountains into Lahaul, turning a full-day expedition into an afternoon you will not stop talking about.

Day 0	The long road north
Day 1	Solang, and a tunnel through winter
Day 2	Temples, cafes and the slow side of town
Day 3	One last look at the peaks
Day 4	Home, sweet home

THE JOURNEY

Day by day, the way you will live it.

DAY 0

The long road north

Delhi fades behind the Volvo window. Somewhere before dawn the air changes, and you wake up to pine forests and the sound of the Beas.

Depart Delhi in an AC Volvo

Overnight drive to the Kullu Valley

DAY 1

Solang, and a tunnel through winter

Check in, breakfast, and then straight up to Solang Valley: snow, ropeway, and more adrenaline options than you have hours.

In the afternoon the road does its magic trick. Nine kilometres of Atal Tunnel and you are in Sissu, on the Lahaul side, where the landscape stops being green and starts being epic. Bonfire at the hotel to close it out.

Arrive in the morning, check in and breakfast

Solang Valley, snow and ropeway

Atal Tunnel drive to Sissu, Lahaul

Bonfire, dinner, overnight in the hotel

DAY 2

Temples, cafes and the slow side of town

DAY 3

One last look at the peaks

A slow morning by the Beas, a late breakfast, and the mountains get one final photo session before the Volvo points south.

Breakfast and check-out

Evening departure for Delhi

DAY 4

Home, sweet home

Delhi by morning, with snow still in your camera roll. The theory holds: a weekend is enough.

Arrive Delhi in the morning

“Somewhere between the bus ride and the summit, the week falls away.”
